

Recommended Genealogy Podcasts

1. How We Got Here Genealogy – Hosted by Brian Nash, this podcast explores family and local history stories, tracing lineages back centuries, including Scotland, Ireland, and early North American settlements. Episodes are long-form, averaging 54 minutes, and provide in-depth genealogical insights and storytelling.
2. Extreme Genes – Hosted by Scott Fisher, this show highlights the emotional and investigative journey of genealogists, featuring unique stories like “One Marriage, Nine Kids, Eight Fathers!” It’s ideal for listeners who enjoy engaging, real-life family history narratives.
3. The Family Tree Magazine Podcast – Hosted by Andrew Koch, this podcast offers expert advice, research strategies, and updates from Family Tree Magazine. Episodes are released twice per month and cover practical tips for building and expanding your family tree.
4. The Barefoot Genealogist – Crista Cowan’s podcast inspires listeners to connect with their family history, offering guidance on crafting family narratives and uncovering meaningful stories. It’s suitable for those looking to create a legacy through genealogy.
5. Genealogy Gems Podcast – Hosted by Lisa Louise Cooke, this show provides research techniques, creative ways to share family history, and interviews with experts and celebrities. It’s like attending a personal genealogy conference from home.
6. Research Like a Pro Genealogy Podcast – Diana Elder and Nicole Dyer focus on advanced research methodology, including source citations, report writing, and case studies. This podcast is ideal for genealogists seeking to improve their research skills.
7. Ancestral Findings – Offers brief historical and informational snippets to help listeners advance their family tree. It’s a concise, educational option for those who prefer shorter episodes.